

WITH THE CANDIDATES

What Mayoralty Aspirants in New York Tell Hearers.

ISSUES SEEM NEGLECTED

Hearst and Gaynor Employ Bitter Personalities.

EACH UPBRAIDS THE OTHER

Bannard Charges the Tammany Administration With Waste and Mismanagement.

Special From a Staff Correspondent.
NEW YORK, October 21.—Let's take an evening off and go around with the candidates and hear what they have to say of each other. We don't have to stand for it, not even believe it; if not illuminating it will at least be interesting, so to the East Side to hear Hearst, over to Brooklyn to listen to Judge Gaynor, and back to Carnegie Hall for Bannard. The subway will enable us to make the trip, and hear a little of each speech. Mr. Hearst made four speeches on the East Side last night. Mr. Hearst is not expected to get the vote he received in his race for mayor five years ago by a long shot, but that he still retains the affection of a large section of his old constituency seemed to be indicated by his reception. The first speech was made in Yorkville Casino, where 1,500 men packed themselves and cheered and applauded the young leader. They cheered Mr. Hearst seven minutes, and then he lit into Judge Gaynor.

Hearst Attacks Gaynor.
"When I first read some of Judge Gaynor's statements I was inclined to be angry and to reply with bitterness," said Mr. Hearst.

"But I have become sincerely sorry for this old gentleman, who has stepped down from his high position as a judge of the supreme court to vie in violence with the ward heeler of Tammany Hall. Judge Gaynor often attacked Tammany Hall and announced himself as a candidate to reform Tammany, but Mr. Gaynor accuses Tammany of defending the atrocious Tammany ticket."

Gaynor Returns the Compliment.
Three thousand people turned out to meet Judge Gaynor at the Academy of Music in Brooklyn. You are supposed to be facing a different order of man from these wicked New Yorkers as you look down over this audience from the stage. These are folk of a higher order, home-staying men, familiar with baby carriages and unfamiliar with Church and Jack's. They look upon Tammany Hall as a den of iniquity and the tiger as having horns and hoofs.

Judge Gaynor is received with appreciation and well-bred enthusiasm. It is conventional rather than uproarious, but don't forget that each of these men is going to the polls on election day and mark his ballot intelligently. Judge Gaynor goes after Mr. Hearst without undue delay. "Here is Mr. Hearst belowling until he is sick of it. He says we are the Tammany ticket. Oh, dear me, how long since he was on the Tammany ticket? How dainty and how nice and how genteel he was when he was on the Tammany ticket just at present."

"When he came on here from California for reasons well known to a great many people, about the first thing he approached Mr. Croker, the leader of Tammany Hall, to get his advice. He was sent to Congress, and he was sent back."

"The surroundings and the habitations and methods of the Tammany Hall are what he served under. Mr. Croker in Congress I think the roll call shows that he was there. He was there when he was pecking out from behind the door probably, or more likely down here in New York, negotiating with the newspapers. We would do well for our own intellectual growth and integrity to entirely eschew any content with his own newspaper during this canvass. He has hired columns in another paper, and advertises himself as though he were a patent medicine or a nostrum."

Bannard Arraigns Tammany.
Carnegie Hall is well filled, though not many of the reasons well known to a great many people, about the first thing he approached Mr. Croker, the leader of Tammany Hall, to get his advice. He was sent to Congress, and he was sent back."

"The rest of his speech was drowned in the deafening uproar, the opposit shouting and slandering deeds. The president of the chamber broke several bills trying to quell the disturbance and finally was forced to adjourn the sitting. La Cieria declared that the hostility to the government had been organized by its political opponents for their own ends and was not due to the dissatisfaction of the nation."

Fall of Spanish Cabinet
Provoked by Ferrer's Death
The Spanish administration has been tottering for some time. The execution of Prof. Ferrer was the culminating blow.

"The war in Morocco has been unpopular and led to rioting at Barcelona, Girona and other places. The rioting in Barcelona caused the arrest of Prof. Ferrer and his subsequent hasty execution. Demonstrations all over Europe in protest against the execution affected King Alfonso greatly, and brought down more criticism of Maura and his associates."

Dispatches from Madrid within the last day or two stated that the king had summoned his premier and censured him severely because he had not kept the throne thoroughly posted as to the situation and the general feeling against the execution of Ferrer. The king also complained of the undue haste in carrying out the sentence.

It was also said that the king wanted to use the pardoning power in the Ferrer case, but had been dissuaded by the prime minister.

Want Weyer to Succeed Marina.
A press dispatch this morning from London quotes the Madrid correspondent of the London Telegraph as saying that as the result of questions put to many liberal leaders he has learned that the whole liberal party, from Senator Moret down, believe that Gen. Weyer, more known in connection with the Spanish-American war over Cuba, ought to be sent to Morocco to finish the Rif war.

The liberals, according to the correspondent, are greatly dissatisfied with Gen. Marina, commander of the Spanish forces in Morocco, and believe he should retire with Premier Maura.

The cabinet which resigned today was

formed January 25, 1907, with the following ministers:
Premier, Senor Maura.
Foreign affairs, Senor Alendalazar.
Justice, Marquis de Figueroa.
Finance, Senor Besada.
Interior, Senor de la Cieria.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.
Marine, Senor Fernandez.
Agriculture, commerce and public works, Senor Sanchez Guerra.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.

Revolutionary Spirit Aroused.
Proceeding the formation of this cabinet there had been no less than five liberal ministries in eighteen months. The religious issue had been the rock on which these ministries were wrecked.

The accession to power of Senor Maura, who had before held the premiership, was regarded as a sweeping victory for the republicans and one likely to arouse a revolutionary spirit. This proved to be the case.

The opposition finally united against the government's conduct and furtherance of the war in Morocco. The stern measures taken to put down the recent anti-war demonstrations in Spain tended to inflame the opposition. The execution of Ferrer, followed by popular demonstrations of disapproval, brought matters to a crisis.

When parliament reopened the liberals, republicans and socialists bitterly assailed the government. The cabinet showed a disposition to fight for its life. Following the violent scene in the chamber of deputies yesterday it was believed that the cabinet would resign. The opposition, however, did not desire to assume power. The cabinet showed a disposition to fight for its life. Following the violent scene in the chamber of deputies yesterday it was believed that the cabinet would resign. The opposition, however, did not desire to assume power.

The session of the chamber of deputies last night was exceptionally violent. Senor Moret y Prendergast, one time premier, who on Monday made a scathing arraignment of the premier, Senor Maura, and his ministers, rebuked his attacks, accusing La Cieria with issuing misleading statements to the press.

The minister of the interior tried to reply. He managed to shout: "We do not fear threats of violence. We will remain, for to resign would be cowardly."

The rest of his speech was drowned in the deafening uproar, the opposit shouting and slandering deeds. The president of the chamber broke several bills trying to quell the disturbance and finally was forced to adjourn the sitting. La Cieria declared that the hostility to the government had been organized by its political opponents for their own ends and was not due to the dissatisfaction of the nation."

"The war in Morocco has been unpopular and led to rioting at Barcelona, Girona and other places. The rioting in Barcelona caused the arrest of Prof. Ferrer and his subsequent hasty execution. Demonstrations all over Europe in protest against the execution affected King Alfonso greatly, and brought down more criticism of Maura and his associates."

Dispatches from Madrid within the last day or two stated that the king had summoned his premier and censured him severely because he had not kept the throne thoroughly posted as to the situation and the general feeling against the execution of Ferrer. The king also complained of the undue haste in carrying out the sentence.

It was also said that the king wanted to use the pardoning power in the Ferrer case, but had been dissuaded by the prime minister.

Want Weyer to Succeed Marina.
A press dispatch this morning from London quotes the Madrid correspondent of the London Telegraph as saying that as the result of questions put to many liberal leaders he has learned that the whole liberal party, from Senator Moret down, believe that Gen. Weyer, more known in connection with the Spanish-American war over Cuba, ought to be sent to Morocco to finish the Rif war.

The liberals, according to the correspondent, are greatly dissatisfied with Gen. Marina, commander of the Spanish forces in Morocco, and believe he should retire with Premier Maura.

The cabinet which resigned today was

formed January 25, 1907, with the following ministers:
Premier, Senor Maura.
Foreign affairs, Senor Alendalazar.
Justice, Marquis de Figueroa.
Finance, Senor Besada.
Interior, Senor de la Cieria.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.
Marine, Senor Fernandez.
Agriculture, commerce and public works, Senor Sanchez Guerra.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.

Revolutionary Spirit Aroused.
Proceeding the formation of this cabinet there had been no less than five liberal ministries in eighteen months. The religious issue had been the rock on which these ministries were wrecked.

The accession to power of Senor Maura, who had before held the premiership, was regarded as a sweeping victory for the republicans and one likely to arouse a revolutionary spirit. This proved to be the case.

The opposition finally united against the government's conduct and furtherance of the war in Morocco. The stern measures taken to put down the recent anti-war demonstrations in Spain tended to inflame the opposition. The execution of Ferrer, followed by popular demonstrations of disapproval, brought matters to a crisis.

When parliament reopened the liberals, republicans and socialists bitterly assailed the government. The cabinet showed a disposition to fight for its life. Following the violent scene in the chamber of deputies yesterday it was believed that the cabinet would resign. The opposition, however, did not desire to assume power.

The session of the chamber of deputies last night was exceptionally violent. Senor Moret y Prendergast, one time premier, who on Monday made a scathing arraignment of the premier, Senor Maura, and his ministers, rebuked his attacks, accusing La Cieria with issuing misleading statements to the press.

The minister of the interior tried to reply. He managed to shout: "We do not fear threats of violence. We will remain, for to resign would be cowardly."

The rest of his speech was drowned in the deafening uproar, the opposit shouting and slandering deeds. The president of the chamber broke several bills trying to quell the disturbance and finally was forced to adjourn the sitting. La Cieria declared that the hostility to the government had been organized by its political opponents for their own ends and was not due to the dissatisfaction of the nation."

"The war in Morocco has been unpopular and led to rioting at Barcelona, Girona and other places. The rioting in Barcelona caused the arrest of Prof. Ferrer and his subsequent hasty execution. Demonstrations all over Europe in protest against the execution affected King Alfonso greatly, and brought down more criticism of Maura and his associates."

Dispatches from Madrid within the last day or two stated that the king had summoned his premier and censured him severely because he had not kept the throne thoroughly posted as to the situation and the general feeling against the execution of Ferrer. The king also complained of the undue haste in carrying out the sentence.

It was also said that the king wanted to use the pardoning power in the Ferrer case, but had been dissuaded by the prime minister.

Want Weyer to Succeed Marina.
A press dispatch this morning from London quotes the Madrid correspondent of the London Telegraph as saying that as the result of questions put to many liberal leaders he has learned that the whole liberal party, from Senator Moret down, believe that Gen. Weyer, more known in connection with the Spanish-American war over Cuba, ought to be sent to Morocco to finish the Rif war.

The liberals, according to the correspondent, are greatly dissatisfied with Gen. Marina, commander of the Spanish forces in Morocco, and believe he should retire with Premier Maura.

The cabinet which resigned today was

formed January 25, 1907, with the following ministers:
Premier, Senor Maura.
Foreign affairs, Senor Alendalazar.
Justice, Marquis de Figueroa.
Finance, Senor Besada.
Interior, Senor de la Cieria.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.
Marine, Senor Fernandez.
Agriculture, commerce and public works, Senor Sanchez Guerra.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.

Revolutionary Spirit Aroused.
Proceeding the formation of this cabinet there had been no less than five liberal ministries in eighteen months. The religious issue had been the rock on which these ministries were wrecked.

The accession to power of Senor Maura, who had before held the premiership, was regarded as a sweeping victory for the republicans and one likely to arouse a revolutionary spirit. This proved to be the case.

The opposition finally united against the government's conduct and furtherance of the war in Morocco. The stern measures taken to put down the recent anti-war demonstrations in Spain tended to inflame the opposition. The execution of Ferrer, followed by popular demonstrations of disapproval, brought matters to a crisis.

When parliament reopened the liberals, republicans and socialists bitterly assailed the government. The cabinet showed a disposition to fight for its life. Following the violent scene in the chamber of deputies yesterday it was believed that the cabinet would resign. The opposition, however, did not desire to assume power.

The session of the chamber of deputies last night was exceptionally violent. Senor Moret y Prendergast, one time premier, who on Monday made a scathing arraignment of the premier, Senor Maura, and his ministers, rebuked his attacks, accusing La Cieria with issuing misleading statements to the press.

The minister of the interior tried to reply. He managed to shout: "We do not fear threats of violence. We will remain, for to resign would be cowardly."

The rest of his speech was drowned in the deafening uproar, the opposit shouting and slandering deeds. The president of the chamber broke several bills trying to quell the disturbance and finally was forced to adjourn the sitting. La Cieria declared that the hostility to the government had been organized by its political opponents for their own ends and was not due to the dissatisfaction of the nation."

"The war in Morocco has been unpopular and led to rioting at Barcelona, Girona and other places. The rioting in Barcelona caused the arrest of Prof. Ferrer and his subsequent hasty execution. Demonstrations all over Europe in protest against the execution affected King Alfonso greatly, and brought down more criticism of Maura and his associates."

Dispatches from Madrid within the last day or two stated that the king had summoned his premier and censured him severely because he had not kept the throne thoroughly posted as to the situation and the general feeling against the execution of Ferrer. The king also complained of the undue haste in carrying out the sentence.

It was also said that the king wanted to use the pardoning power in the Ferrer case, but had been dissuaded by the prime minister.

Want Weyer to Succeed Marina.
A press dispatch this morning from London quotes the Madrid correspondent of the London Telegraph as saying that as the result of questions put to many liberal leaders he has learned that the whole liberal party, from Senator Moret down, believe that Gen. Weyer, more known in connection with the Spanish-American war over Cuba, ought to be sent to Morocco to finish the Rif war.

The liberals, according to the correspondent, are greatly dissatisfied with Gen. Marina, commander of the Spanish forces in Morocco, and believe he should retire with Premier Maura.

The cabinet which resigned today was

formed January 25, 1907, with the following ministers:
Premier, Senor Maura.
Foreign affairs, Senor Alendalazar.
Justice, Marquis de Figueroa.
Finance, Senor Besada.
Interior, Senor de la Cieria.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.
Marine, Senor Fernandez.
Agriculture, commerce and public works, Senor Sanchez Guerra.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.

Revolutionary Spirit Aroused.
Proceeding the formation of this cabinet there had been no less than five liberal ministries in eighteen months. The religious issue had been the rock on which these ministries were wrecked.

The accession to power of Senor Maura, who had before held the premiership, was regarded as a sweeping victory for the republicans and one likely to arouse a revolutionary spirit. This proved to be the case.

The opposition finally united against the government's conduct and furtherance of the war in Morocco. The stern measures taken to put down the recent anti-war demonstrations in Spain tended to inflame the opposition. The execution of Ferrer, followed by popular demonstrations of disapproval, brought matters to a crisis.

When parliament reopened the liberals, republicans and socialists bitterly assailed the government. The cabinet showed a disposition to fight for its life. Following the violent scene in the chamber of deputies yesterday it was believed that the cabinet would resign. The opposition, however, did not desire to assume power.

The session of the chamber of deputies last night was exceptionally violent. Senor Moret y Prendergast, one time premier, who on Monday made a scathing arraignment of the premier, Senor Maura, and his ministers, rebuked his attacks, accusing La Cieria with issuing misleading statements to the press.

The minister of the interior tried to reply. He managed to shout: "We do not fear threats of violence. We will remain, for to resign would be cowardly."

The rest of his speech was drowned in the deafening uproar, the opposit shouting and slandering deeds. The president of the chamber broke several bills trying to quell the disturbance and finally was forced to adjourn the sitting. La Cieria declared that the hostility to the government had been organized by its political opponents for their own ends and was not due to the dissatisfaction of the nation."

"The war in Morocco has been unpopular and led to rioting at Barcelona, Girona and other places. The rioting in Barcelona caused the arrest of Prof. Ferrer and his subsequent hasty execution. Demonstrations all over Europe in protest against the execution affected King Alfonso greatly, and brought down more criticism of Maura and his associates."

Dispatches from Madrid within the last day or two stated that the king had summoned his premier and censured him severely because he had not kept the throne thoroughly posted as to the situation and the general feeling against the execution of Ferrer. The king also complained of the undue haste in carrying out the sentence.

It was also said that the king wanted to use the pardoning power in the Ferrer case, but had been dissuaded by the prime minister.

Want Weyer to Succeed Marina.
A press dispatch this morning from London quotes the Madrid correspondent of the London Telegraph as saying that as the result of questions put to many liberal leaders he has learned that the whole liberal party, from Senator Moret down, believe that Gen. Weyer, more known in connection with the Spanish-American war over Cuba, ought to be sent to Morocco to finish the Rif war.

The liberals, according to the correspondent, are greatly dissatisfied with Gen. Marina, commander of the Spanish forces in Morocco, and believe he should retire with Premier Maura.

The cabinet which resigned today was

formed January 25, 1907, with the following ministers:
Premier, Senor Maura.
Foreign affairs, Senor Alendalazar.
Justice, Marquis de Figueroa.
Finance, Senor Besada.
Interior, Senor de la Cieria.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.
Marine, Senor Fernandez.
Agriculture, commerce and public works, Senor Sanchez Guerra.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.

Revolutionary Spirit Aroused.
Proceeding the formation of this cabinet there had been no less than five liberal ministries in eighteen months. The religious issue had been the rock on which these ministries were wrecked.

The accession to power of Senor Maura, who had before held the premiership, was regarded as a sweeping victory for the republicans and one likely to arouse a revolutionary spirit. This proved to be the case.

The opposition finally united against the government's conduct and furtherance of the war in Morocco. The stern measures taken to put down the recent anti-war demonstrations in Spain tended to inflame the opposition. The execution of Ferrer, followed by popular demonstrations of disapproval, brought matters to a crisis.

When parliament reopened the liberals, republicans and socialists bitterly assailed the government. The cabinet showed a disposition to fight for its life. Following the violent scene in the chamber of deputies yesterday it was believed that the cabinet would resign. The opposition, however, did not desire to assume power.

The session of the chamber of deputies last night was exceptionally violent. Senor Moret y Prendergast, one time premier, who on Monday made a scathing arraignment of the premier, Senor Maura, and his ministers, rebuked his attacks, accusing La Cieria with issuing misleading statements to the press.

The minister of the interior tried to reply. He managed to shout: "We do not fear threats of violence. We will remain, for to resign would be cowardly."

The rest of his speech was drowned in the deafening uproar, the opposit shouting and slandering deeds. The president of the chamber broke several bills trying to quell the disturbance and finally was forced to adjourn the sitting. La Cieria declared that the hostility to the government had been organized by its political opponents for their own ends and was not due to the dissatisfaction of the nation."

"The war in Morocco has been unpopular and led to rioting at Barcelona, Girona and other places. The rioting in Barcelona caused the arrest of Prof. Ferrer and his subsequent hasty execution. Demonstrations all over Europe in protest against the execution affected King Alfonso greatly, and brought down more criticism of Maura and his associates."

Dispatches from Madrid within the last day or two stated that the king had summoned his premier and censured him severely because he had not kept the throne thoroughly posted as to the situation and the general feeling against the execution of Ferrer. The king also complained of the undue haste in carrying out the sentence.

It was also said that the king wanted to use the pardoning power in the Ferrer case, but had been dissuaded by the prime minister.

Want Weyer to Succeed Marina.
A press dispatch this morning from London quotes the Madrid correspondent of the London Telegraph as saying that as the result of questions put to many liberal leaders he has learned that the whole liberal party, from Senator Moret down, believe that Gen. Weyer, more known in connection with the Spanish-American war over Cuba, ought to be sent to Morocco to finish the Rif war.

The liberals, according to the correspondent, are greatly dissatisfied with Gen. Marina, commander of the Spanish forces in Morocco, and believe he should retire with Premier Maura.

The cabinet which resigned today was

formed January 25, 1907, with the following ministers:
Premier, Senor Maura.
Foreign affairs, Senor Alendalazar.
Justice, Marquis de Figueroa.
Finance, Senor Besada.
Interior, Senor de la Cieria.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.
Marine, Senor Fernandez.
Agriculture, commerce and public works, Senor Sanchez Guerra.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.

Revolutionary Spirit Aroused.
Proceeding the formation of this cabinet there had been no less than five liberal ministries in eighteen months. The religious issue had been the rock on which these ministries were wrecked.

The accession to power of Senor Maura, who had before held the premiership, was regarded as a sweeping victory for the republicans and one likely to arouse a revolutionary spirit. This proved to be the case.

The opposition finally united against the government's conduct and furtherance of the war in Morocco. The stern measures taken to put down the recent anti-war demonstrations in Spain tended to inflame the opposition. The execution of Ferrer, followed by popular demonstrations of disapproval, brought matters to a crisis.

When parliament reopened the liberals, republicans and socialists bitterly assailed the government. The cabinet showed a disposition to fight for its life. Following the violent scene in the chamber of deputies yesterday it was believed that the cabinet would resign. The opposition, however, did not desire to assume power.

The session of the chamber of deputies last night was exceptionally violent. Senor Moret y Prendergast, one time premier, who on Monday made a scathing arraignment of the premier, Senor Maura, and his ministers, rebuked his attacks, accusing La Cieria with issuing misleading statements to the press.

The minister of the interior tried to reply. He managed to shout: "We do not fear threats of violence. We will remain, for to resign would be cowardly."

The rest of his speech was drowned in the deafening uproar, the opposit shouting and slandering deeds. The president of the chamber broke several bills trying to quell the disturbance and finally was forced to adjourn the sitting. La Cieria declared that the hostility to the government had been organized by its political opponents for their own ends and was not due to the dissatisfaction of the nation."

"The war in Morocco has been unpopular and led to rioting at Barcelona, Girona and other places. The rioting in Barcelona caused the arrest of Prof. Ferrer and his subsequent hasty execution. Demonstrations all over Europe in protest against the execution affected King Alfonso greatly, and brought down more criticism of Maura and his associates."

Dispatches from Madrid within the last day or two stated that the king had summoned his premier and censured him severely because he had not kept the throne thoroughly posted as to the situation and the general feeling against the execution of Ferrer. The king also complained of the undue haste in carrying out the sentence.

It was also said that the king wanted to use the pardoning power in the Ferrer case, but had been dissuaded by the prime minister.

Want Weyer to Succeed Marina.
A press dispatch this morning from London quotes the Madrid correspondent of the London Telegraph as saying that as the result of questions put to many liberal leaders he has learned that the whole liberal party, from Senator Moret down, believe that Gen. Weyer, more known in connection with the Spanish-American war over Cuba, ought to be sent to Morocco to finish the Rif war.

The liberals, according to the correspondent, are greatly dissatisfied with Gen. Marina, commander of the Spanish forces in Morocco, and believe he should retire with Premier Maura.

The cabinet which resigned today was

formed January 25, 1907, with the following ministers:
Premier, Senor Maura.
Foreign affairs, Senor Alendalazar.
Justice, Marquis de Figueroa.
Finance, Senor Besada.
Interior, Senor de la Cieria.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.
Marine, Senor Fernandez.
Agriculture, commerce and public works, Senor Sanchez Guerra.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.

Revolutionary Spirit Aroused.
Proceeding the formation of this cabinet there had been no less than five liberal ministries in eighteen months. The religious issue had been the rock on which these ministries were wrecked.

The accession to power of Senor Maura, who had before held the premiership, was regarded as a sweeping victory for the republicans and one likely to arouse a revolutionary spirit. This proved to be the case.

The opposition finally united against the government's conduct and furtherance of the war in Morocco. The stern measures taken to put down the recent anti-war demonstrations in Spain tended to inflame the opposition. The execution of Ferrer, followed by popular demonstrations of disapproval, brought matters to a crisis.

When parliament reopened the liberals, republicans and socialists bitterly assailed the government. The cabinet showed a disposition to fight for its life. Following the violent scene in the chamber of deputies yesterday it was believed that the cabinet would resign. The opposition, however, did not desire to assume power.

The session of the chamber of deputies last night was exceptionally violent. Senor Moret y Prendergast, one time premier, who on Monday made a scathing arraignment of the premier, Senor Maura, and his ministers, rebuked his attacks, accusing La Cieria with issuing misleading statements to the press.

The minister of the interior tried to reply. He managed to shout: "We do not fear threats of violence. We will remain, for to resign would be cowardly."

The rest of his speech was drowned in the deafening uproar, the opposit shouting and slandering deeds. The president of the chamber broke several bills trying to quell the disturbance and finally was forced to adjourn the sitting. La Cieria declared that the hostility to the government had been organized by its political opponents for their own ends and was not due to the dissatisfaction of the nation."

"The war in Morocco has been unpopular and led to rioting at Barcelona, Girona and other places. The rioting in Barcelona caused the arrest of Prof. Ferrer and his subsequent hasty execution. Demonstrations all over Europe in protest against the execution affected King Alfonso greatly, and brought down more criticism of Maura and his associates."

Dispatches from Madrid within the last day or two stated that the king had summoned his premier and censured him severely because he had not kept the throne thoroughly posted as to the situation and the general feeling against the execution of Ferrer. The king also complained of the undue haste in carrying out the sentence.

It was also said that the king wanted to use the pardoning power in the Ferrer case, but had been dissuaded by the prime minister.

Want Weyer to Succeed Marina.
A press dispatch this morning from London quotes the Madrid correspondent of the London Telegraph as saying that as the result of questions put to many liberal leaders he has learned that the whole liberal party, from Senator Moret down, believe that Gen. Weyer, more known in connection with the Spanish-American war over Cuba, ought to be sent to Morocco to finish the Rif war.

The liberals, according to the correspondent, are greatly dissatisfied with Gen. Marina, commander of the Spanish forces in Morocco, and believe he should retire with Premier Maura.

The cabinet which resigned today was

formed January 25, 1907, with the following ministers:
Premier, Senor Maura.
Foreign affairs, Senor Alendalazar.
Justice, Marquis de Figueroa.
Finance, Senor Besada.
Interior, Senor de la Cieria.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.
Marine, Senor Fernandez.
Agriculture, commerce and public works, Senor Sanchez Guerra.
Education, Senor Rodriguez San Pedro.

Revolutionary Spirit Aroused.
Proceeding the formation of this cabinet there had been no less than five liberal ministries in eighteen months. The religious issue had been the rock on which these ministries were wrecked.

The accession to power of Senor Maura, who had before held the premiership, was regarded as a sweeping victory for the republicans and one likely to arouse a revolutionary spirit. This proved to be the case.

The opposition finally united against the government's conduct and furtherance of the war in Morocco. The stern measures taken to put down the recent anti-war demonstrations in Spain tended to inflame the opposition. The execution of Ferrer, followed by popular demonstrations of disapproval, brought matters to a crisis.

When parliament reopened the liberals, republicans and socialists bitterly assailed the government. The cabinet showed a disposition to fight for its life. Following the violent scene in the chamber of deputies yesterday it was believed that the cabinet would resign. The opposition, however, did not desire to assume power.

The session of the chamber of deputies last night was exceptionally violent. Senor Moret y Prendergast, one time premier, who on Monday made a scathing arraignment of the premier, Senor Maura, and his ministers, rebuked his attacks, accusing La Cieria with issuing misleading statements to the press.

The minister of the interior tried to reply. He managed to shout: "We do not fear threats of violence. We will remain, for to resign would be cowardly."

The rest of his speech was drowned in the deafening uproar, the opposit shouting and slandering deeds. The president of the chamber broke several bills trying to quell the disturbance and finally was forced to adjourn the sitting. La Cieria declared that the hostility to the government had been organized by its political opponents for their own ends and was not due to the dissatisfaction of the nation."

"The war in Morocco has been unpopular and led to rioting at Barcelona, Girona and other places. The rioting in Barcelona caused the arrest of Prof. Ferrer and his subsequent hasty execution. Demonstrations all over Europe in protest against the execution affected King Alfonso greatly, and brought down more criticism of Maura and his associates."

Dispatches from Madrid within the last day or two stated that the king had summoned his premier and censured him severely because he had not kept the throne thoroughly posted as to the situation and the general feeling against the execution of Ferrer. The king also complained of the undue haste in carrying out the sentence.

It was also said that the king wanted to use the pardoning power in the Ferrer case, but had been dissuaded by the prime minister.

Want Weyer to Succeed Marina.
A press dispatch this morning from London quotes the Madrid correspondent of the London Telegraph as saying that as the result of questions put to many liberal leaders he has learned that the whole liberal party, from Senator Moret down, believe that Gen. Weyer, more known in connection with the Spanish-American war over Cuba, ought to be sent to Morocco to finish the Rif war.

The liberals, according to the correspondent, are greatly dissatisfied with Gen. Marina, commander of the Spanish forces in Morocco, and believe he should retire with Premier Maura.

The cabinet which resigned today was formed January